How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

The Issachar Fund realized a positive return for the 12 months ended September 30, 2024. The market did not respond as favorable to the Fund's risk-managed strategy while the Fed fought inflation with higher rates. The Fund followed its time-tested discipline and sold stocks as sell stops were triggered. We believe the Fund's new single-digit loss cutting and double-digit gains selling rules will improve performance, especially since the Fed has ended its raising campaign and begun lowering rates. the Fund now has the wind at its back and is going in the right direction.
